

Managing Spending: Higher Education's Toughest Test Yet

The challenges finance and admin leaders are facing now.

It's always been hard to control spending, and it's getting worse.

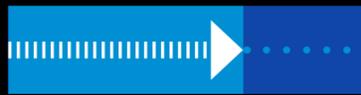

Fiscal responsibility and accountability are more important than ever.

Colleges and universities need high-tech tools to tackle the shifting expenses of remote work.

65% say automating invoice processing and/or expense reimbursements would improve financial operations.

46% say tracking additional department spending would increase efficiency.

43% say getting visibility into the real-time expense information would increase control over the budget.

Higher education leaders are looking for automated, integrated processes to improve how they manage invoices and expenses. To learn more about their search – and the solution – read the full Wakefield Research report.

The Higher Education survey, funded by SAP Concur Solutions was conducted by Wakefield Research (www.wakefieldresearch.com) between June 15th and July 2nd, 2020 among 350 U.S. finance and administration decision makers at public or private higher education institutions using an email invitation and an online survey.

Results of any sample are subject to sampling variation. The magnitude of the variation is measurable and is affected by the number of interviews and the level of the percentages expressing the results. For the interviews conducted in this particular study, the chances are 95 in 100 that a survey result does not vary, plus or minus, by the interviews 5.2 percentage points from the result that would be obtained if interviews had been conducted with all persons in the universe represented by the sample.